see separate sheet

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US-A-5 237 306 (ADELL ROBERT) 17 August 1993 (1993-08-17)

1. The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claim 1, and discloses (the references in parentheses applying to this document):
A cooperative advance warning system (abstract) for use on a vehicle to warn drivers of oncoming vehicles of an upcoming, unexpected road hazard comprising:
a lamp mounted on the vehicle (Fig.7: 90) in a location where light emitted by the lamp is visible to drivers of the oncoming vehicles;
a switch means (61,81,abstract, col.6, lines 6-27) connected to the lamp for activating and deactivating the lamp, the switch means mounted to the vehicle in a location that is easily accessible to the driver of the vehicle; and an electronic control means (78) connected to the lamp for controlling the characteristics of the light emitted by the lamp said electronic control means being capable of causing said lamp to flash on and off at a pre- determined frequency.
- 1.1 In consequence, the advance warning system claimed in claim 1 differs from the system known from document D1 in that said frequency being variable depending on the length of time said lamp has been activated.
The problem to be solved by the present invention may therefore be regarded as creating a system which sufficiently alerts the driver of an oncoming vehicle.

The solution is however a simple feature. This feature might be a system which changes the flashing frequency between two frequencies. If two frequencies are used one after the other the present frequency is depending on the length of time. This changing of frequency clearly alerts oncoming drivers very well.
Consequently, the skilled person would regard it a normal design procedure to combine all the features set out in claim 1.

Thus, the subject-matter of claim 1 does not involve an inventive step and does not satisfy the criterion set forth in Article 33(3) PCT.

2. In this general version of claim 1 no information about the distance of the upcoming hazard can be given. Consequently, the problem as stated on page 2 cannot be solved with this feature.

It appears that the intention of the applicant was to claim a feature similar to the feature shown in the description on page 6, lines 19/20. This is an essential feature to solve the problem. If the claim were reformulated accordingly it would include an inventive step.

3. The features of claim 2 are known from D1, column 6, lines 27-39 (40).
Thus, the subject-matter of claim 2 does not involve an inventive step and does not satisfy the criterion set forth in Article 33(3) PCT.

4. The feature of claim 3 is not known nor hinted from the documents of the search report. This feature can solve the problem and inform the oncoming driver about the distance to the road hazard.

The subject-matter of claim 3 therefore meets the requirements of articles 33(2) and 33(3) PCT.

5. If the term cadence (claim 4) were interpreted as being "the measure or beat of sound or movement", then this feature could not support an inventive step, since every flashing has a beat. Additionally, a complex flashing is shown in D1, Fig.32 (e.g. flashing "h").

The features of claim 5 are known from D1.

The in-use indicator of claim 6 is generally known. The features of claim 7 are generally known.

Thus, the subject-matter of claims 4 to 7 does not involve an inventive step and does not satisfy the criterion set forth in Article 33(3) PCT.

6. Claim 8 is very similar to claim 3 and consequently also meets the requirements of articles 33(2) and 33(3) PCT.

Claims 9-11 contain modifications of the inventive idea embodied in claim 8 and also meet the requirements of Articles 33(2) and 33(3) PCT.

7. The other dependent claims contain only minor features known from document D1 or are well known to the man skilled in the art. The subject-matter of these claims is accordingly lacking inventive step contrary to Article 33(3), PCT.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

The features of the claim/s are not provided with reference signs placed in parentheses (Rule 6.2(b) PCT).
